

Emmy Award winning Dialogue Director, two-time Annie Award nominee (acting) and Casting Director Charlie Adler is one of the industry's most formidable and sought after talents.

Able to comfortably direct and cast different genres easily, his versatility is renowned. He has recently lent his Dialogue Direction talents to the remake of "The Nutty Professor" starring legend Jerry Lewis, the 2010 Emmy Nominated Prime Time series "The Marvelous Misadventures of Flapjack" (Cartoon Network), the Direct to Videos "Dante's Inferno" (Casting and Voice Directing), "Dead Zone" (Casting and Voice Directing), "The Blue Elephant" with Carl Reiner and Martin Short and several more titles for the Weinstein Co. He completed the long form action adventure Fire Breather for Cartoon Network which broke all records for it's time slot as well as Casting and Voice Directing Van Partiple's "Johnny Bravo goes to Bollywood" starring Jeff Bennett and Brenda Vacarro, a prime time comedy pilot for Fox Television (Casting and Voice Directing) and Bubble Guppies for NIK Jr.

Adler directed all the Klasky Csupo franchised series and feature films, "Rugrats" (Emmy Award) "The Wild Thornberry's," "Rocket Power," "Pre School Daze" and "All Grown Up" as well as "Stripperella" (Pamela Anderson SPIKE TV), "The Replacements" "The Emperor's New School" (directing legend Eartha Kitt's Emmy Award winning performance) "The Buzz on Maggie" all for Disney Television. Charlie also cast and voice directed "Eloise at the Plaza" (Starz), "Holly Hobbie" with Jane Lynch (American Greeting Cards) and Spawn (Film Roman).

As a Voice Actor, Adler has appeared as series regular in over 100 animated series often playing opposite himself. He was twice nominated for an Annie Award for his multiple roles as Cow, Chicken and the Red Guy in the Emmy Nominated series "Cow and Chicken", was Baboon in "I.M. Weasle" (opposite Michael Dorn) and can be heard playing 5 roles (including Cobra Commander) in the "GI Joe Resolute" Internet series as well as reprising Cobra Commander in Hasbro's New GI Joe Origins series on the HUB. Other credits include Mr. Whiskers in Disney's "Brandy & Mr. Whiskers," 3 roles in "Pet Aliens," 3 roles in "Shuriken School," 3 roles in "Space Goofs," 2 roles in "Jakers! The Adventures of Piggley Winks" for PBS and Dr. Doom and his mother Coco Von Doom in "Marvel Super Hero Squad" (airing daily on Cartoon Network). He has directed the Marvel Super Hero Game as well as the sequel.

He is currently the voice of Starscream in Michael Bay's Mega blockbuster "Transformers Movie Trilogy" and reprised his role for the 2012 Universal Theme Park "Transformers Ride".

Some other notable characters of Adler's are Buster Bunny in Steven Spielberg's "Tiny Toon Adventures," Ickis in "AAAHH!!! Real Monsters" and Ed and Bev Bighead in "Rocko's Modern Life." He has also been a "Smurf," was an original "G.I. Joe," an original "Transformer," a "Glow Friend," was 3 roles in original "My Little Pony" and was thrilled to be in Ralph Bakshi's cult classic "Cool World" playing opposite Kim Basinger and Brad Pitt as Nails, the neurotic sidekick.

Named one of the "Top 13 All Time Voice-Over Artists" by Animation Magazine and "Voice of The Decade" by Animation World News, Adler is at the undisputed top of the animation world. He is also the director, co-writer and star of the award winning independent live action movie "No Prom for Cindy," appearing in over 45 prestigious film festivals worldwide and winning numerous awards. The movie has been adopted by San Francisco State University's Film Department as part of their curriculum.

Charlie teamed with Arlene Klasky , co-directing her live action drama pilot "Perfect".

As a stage actor, Charlie Adler starred on Broadway in "Torch Song Trilogy" as a successor to Harvey Feinstein. He also toured in the First National Company which earned him a "Helen Hayes Award Best Actor" nomination. Off-Broadway, Adler starred in "Family Business" at the Astor Place Theater for a year as well as appearing in Alan Albert's acclaimed Improv Company, "The Proposition". Adler co-starred with comedy legends Imogene Coca and Rita Rudner in "Once Upon a Mattress," with Professor Irwin Corey in Neil Simon's "God's Favorite" and toured as Edward Albee's complex anti hero in "Zoo Story." In addition, he has played Israel Horowitz's Hero in "Dr. Hero" (another disturbed soul), as well as the Emcee in "Cabaret."

On television, Charlie was a regular on "The Redd Foxx Show," assumed the roles of three generations of sons for PBS in "Then and Now," and was an obsessive photographer in "First & Ten" and just guest starred On "Hot in Cleveland" opposite Susan Lucci and Wendie Malick in the two part " I Love Lucci".

In his youth, (when he had brown hair and eyelids), Adler was a familiar face in dozens television commercials for Coca-Cola, McDonalds, IBM, G.E. Big Red Gum and Safeguard Soap.

As a writer, Adler has co-written "Steven Spielberg's Tiny Toon Adventures" episodes and his critically acclaimed one Man Show (playing eleven characters), "There Used to Be Fireflies," which won him a Dramalogue Award for Best Actor and a Dramalogue Award for Set Design as well.